WHAT IS THE AIAW?

The Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women is a national voluntary organization currently administering programs of women's intercollegiate athletics for over 900 two and four-year college and university member institutions and serving over 12[illegible],000 student-athletes throughout the country.

Founded in 1971 by women in athletics and now the nation's largest governing body for intercollegiate athletics, the AIAW is designed to provide governance and leadership dedicated to the assurance of standards of excellence and educational soundness in women's intercollegiate athletics. The AIAW is committed to providing fair and equitable treatment for the female student-athlete as an integral part of the educational program of its member schools.

With its goals, policies, and regulations established by institutional representatives, the Association has been in the forefront in the vital effort to assure equal opportunity in collegiate athletic programs for all students, female and male.

The AIAW is a substructure of the National Association for Girls and Women in Sport (NAGWS), a professional organization of physical educators, coaches and other sports personnel affiliated with the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation (AAHPER).

PURPOSES

The purposes of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women include:

—To foster broad programs of women's intercollegiate athletics which are consistent with the educational aims and objectives of the member schools and in accordance with the philosophy and standards of the National Association for Girls and Women in Sport.

—To assist member schools in extending and enriching their programs of intercollegiate athletics for women based upon the needs, interests, and capabilities of the individual student.

—To stimulate the development of quality leadership for women's intercollegiate athletic programs.

—To foster programs which will encourage excellence in performance of participants in women's intercollegiate athletics.

—To maintain the spirit of play within competitive sport events so that the concomitant educational values of such an experience are emphasized.

—To increase public understanding and appreciation of the importance and value of sports and athletics as they contribute to the enrichment of the life of the women.

—To encourage and facilitate research on the effects of intercollegiate athletics on women and to disseminate the findings.

—To further the continual evaluation of standards and policies for participants and programs.

—To produce and distribute such material as will be of assistance to persons in the development and improvement of intercollegiate programs.

—To hold national championships and to sponsor conferences, institutes, and meetings which will meet the needs of individuals in member schools.

—To cooperate with other professional groups of similar interest for the ultimate development of sports programs and opportunities for women.

—To provide direction and maintain a relationship with AIAW regional representatives.

—To conduct such other activities as shall be approved by the governing body of the Association.

HISTORY

Women's intercollegiate athletics was first organized on a national basis in 1941, the year the first national collegiate championship was held in the sport of golf, organized by the Department of Physical Education for Women at The Ohio State University. That tournament was not held during World War II, but was resumed following the war and continued to be held as an annual event.

In 1956, the need to establish a method for assuring the continuation of the golf championship brought about the formation of the Tripartite Committee through appointments made by the National Association for Physical Education of College Women, the National Section for Girls and Women's Sport, and the American Federation of College Women. The Tripartite Committee urged the continuation of the national collegiate golf competition, and subsequently suggested the need for studying the problems of intercollegiate competition for college women in general. Upon the recommendation of the Tripartite Committee, the National Joint Committee on Extramural Sports for College Women (NJCESCW) was formed to attempt to guide and administer women's intercollegiate athletic programs.

The Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (CIAW) grew out of the NJCESCW in recognition of the need for expanding national championships and the desire to have governance of women's intercollegiate athletics under the auspices of one organization, the Division for Girls and Women's Sports (DGWS) operating under the American Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation. The purposes of the CIAW were to provide a framework and organization pattern for the conduct of intercollegiate athletic opportunities for women and to sponsor national championships for college women under the guidance of the DGWS.

Formation of the AIAW was approved by the DGWS Council and the AAHPER Board of Directors in 1971, but the CIAW continued to operate until July 1, 1972, at which time the AIAW officially came into existence. The AIAW developed from the CIAW in recognition of the need for institutional membership and elected representation.

From fewer than 300 member schools in its first year, the AIAW has grown to a total membership of over 1,000, making it the nation's largest governing body for intercollegiate athletics.

GOVERNANCE

Ultimate authority of the AIAW rests with the Delegate Assembly as the direct voice of the member institutions in guiding the direction and policies of the organization. All active member schools are entitled to one vote at the annual meeting of the Delegate Assembly.

An Executive Board exercises all the powers of the AIAW subject to the policies established by the membership in meetings of the Delegate Assembly. The Executive Board is composed of the President, President-Elect, Past President, Ethics and Eligibility Committee Chairperson, Rules Standards Committee Chairperson, a Commissioner of National Championships from each division, a Vice President from each division, the NAGWS President, a student representative, and one elected representative from each of nine geographic regions.

The field work of the Association is carried out by various standing committees, special committees, presidential committees, task forces, and sports committees. A national office staff headed by the Executive Director, coordinates AIAW's organizational efforts.

MEMBERSHIP

Active membership in the AIAW is open to any institution if:

—the institution is an accredited college or university of higher education in the United States or its territories;

—the institution provides an intercollegiate athletic program for women in one or more sports;

—the institution is willing to abide by the policies and regulations of the organization;

—if the institution is a member of the appropriate regional organization.

Additionally, associate, affiliate, junior/community college allied or subscription memberships are available.

AIAW membership encompasses all sizes and types of institutions, from large state universities to small private and church-affiliated colleges. The AIAW has witnessed phenomenal growth in its brief history as membership figures reflect.

DIVISIONAL CLASSIFICATION

Historically, AIAW member schools have been divided into two divisions based on female undergraduate enrollment for the purposes of regional and national competition.

Under the revised competitive division structure adopted by the 1979 AIAW Delegate Assembly, and scheduled to go into effect with the 1979-80 term, the system would be expanded to three competitive divisions with classification based on financial aid limits. Division I membership will allow the awarding of 100 per cent of AIAW's maximum permissible aid limit; Division II membership will allow 50 per cent; Division III membership will allow 10 per cent.

CHAMPIONSHIPS

The AIAW organizes and administers all competition at the regional and national levels and currently offers 18 national championships in 13 sports—badminton, basketball, cross country, field hockey, golf, gymnastics, skiing, swimming and diving, synchronized swimming, softball, track and field, tennis and volleyball. The AIAW will sponsor its first national championship in indoor track and field in 1979-80.

The AIAW conducts eight national championships open to all members, five national events open to its large school division, five national championships open to its small school division, and co-sponsors the national competition in field hockey and softball in conjunction with the U.S. Field Hockey Association and Amateur Softball Association, respectively.

Under its new competitive division structure, AIAW's national championship schedule will be expanded to 30 national events beginning in 1979-80 with open championships in badminton, golf, indoor and outdoor track and field, skiing, and synchronized swimming, and divisional championships in basketball, cross country, field hockey, gymnastics, softball, swimming and diving, tennis and volleyball.

AWARDS

Since 1978, the AIAW annually has conferred Broderick awards on the top collegiate woman athlete in each of the AIAW championship sports and has awarded the Broderick Cup to the outstanding collegiate woman athlete of the previous year. Selection of the Broderick Awards and Cup winners is made through mail balloting by all AIAW member institutions.

The awards reflect not only individual athletic achievement, but also encompass the ideals of team contribution, scholastic endeavor, and school and community involvement. Previous recipients of the Broderick Cup include basketball standouts Lusia Harris Stewart of Delta State and UCLA's Ann Meyers.

The AIAW also has presented Awards of Merit annually since 1978 to individuals who have made outstanding contributions to the organization. Past recipients include former AIAW Executive Secretary Kay Hutchcraft, former NAGWS and AIAW president Carole Oglesby, and former AAHPER president Katherine Ley.
